

DR. W. LEROY MAHONEY

W. Leroy Mahoney was born at Elkhorn, now Keetley, Wasatch County, on January 10, 1893, to Jeremiah W. and Sarah Giles Mahoney. When he was a young child the family moved to Heber, where he has since resided. His mother died when he was a child, leaving him and two sisters, now Verna M. Hicken and Mabel M. Burgener. His father was married a few years later to Malinda Hicken and there are six living half-brothers and sisters: Vestus, Denton, and Errol Mahoney, Alta M. Tippetts, Madge M. Brierley, and Cleofa M. Denbow.

Dr. Mahoney attended the old Central School under Attawall Wootton, and Wasatch High School. In 1913 he was called by the LDS Church to serve on a mission to Holland. After laboring there less than a year under the then mission president, LeGrande Richards, all missionaries were called home because of World War I. He completed his mission in Indiana.

In 1918 he married Pearl Bagley of Charleston, immediately after which he was called by the draft board into World War I. He was sent overseas after basic training at Fort Lewis, Washington. He served in France as a machine gunner in the front lines. In the hospital as a result of injuries from poison gas at the time of the armistice, he was sent home on a hospital ship. After discharge he returned to his wife in Heber and attempted to continue his career as a farmer. Impaired health as a result of war injuries forced him to find another occupation. It was then he decided to take up the study of dentistry. Taking his wife and son Daryle, he went to the University of Denver in 1923, graduating in 1927. He returned to Heber and opened his office here, where he has been practicing since. His first wife died in 1929 and in 1942 he married Helen Westfall of Elko, Nevada. They have two children, Larry and Laurel.

Dr. Mahoney served for a time on the board of directors of the Heber City Exchange; was one of the founders and long-time director of the Mutual Aid Society of Wasatch County; was at one time superintendent of the Sunday School in the old Third Ward; served for a time on the Mutual Stake Board and for many years on the Sunday School Stake Board. More recently he has taught the gospel doctrine class in Sunday School and the High Priests' class in his ward.

little snow on the South Pass. We landed in Salt Lake City on September 27, 1852. We were three months on the road. As we came into Salt Lake we thought it the most beautiful city we had ever seen. We camped a few days with some friends in the First Ward. Father soon bought a house and lot in the Sixteenth Ward and we moved into it. We had nothing but a stove we brought with us (no table, bedsteads or chairs). But we were thankful that we were all well and in the land of promise.

When I was 16 I married a polygamist by the name of Orvil Hale. I had one daughter, Esther. Later I was married to Jeremiah Mahoney, on May 17, 1863.

My husband was in an accident and died from the effects of this on April 5, 1868. We had two children, Jeremiah Worthington and Elmer Clarence. After his death I married Henry Walker.

Grandmother died December 29, 1933, in Salt Lake City, Utah, and was buried in Heber City Cemetery.

JEREMIAH W. MAHONEY

Jeremiah Worthington Mahoney, known to his many friends as "Jerry" or "Worth," was born in Coalville, Utah, May 25, 1864, to Louisa Phippen and Jeremiah Mahoney.

He had one brother, Elmer. His father died when he was four years old. When he was six his family moved to Wanship and two years later to Heber. Since that time until his death he resided in Wasatch County. At one time they lived about 1½ miles south of the present location of Jordanelle. The spring he was 10 he went with his stepfather, Henry Walker, and his brother, Jim Walker, to obtain timber from the place where the New Park mine is now located. The snow was 2½ to 4 feet deep, but the three of them got out enough timber for the frames of three barns. That same year he went with his stepfather and uncles with a load of four to Park City. He recalled that at that time (1874) there were but few buildings there, Park City being largely a tent city.

When he was about 12, the family moved to a ranch on the Provo River about 2½ miles east of Hailstone. At the age of 14 he went to work at the Will Moulton ranch, now known as Lee's Ranch. From that time on he was self-supporting. He helped to construct the road from Soapstone to Provo River and was the first to drive a load of lumber over the road with a yoke of cattle. He helped to get the timber down the river and later haul it to Park City.

In 1884 he married Sarah E. Giles. They had four children: Verna M. Mahoney (Hicken), W. LeRoy Mahoney, Sarah Mabel Mahoney Burgener, and one child who died in infancy. His wife, Sarah, died in 1901. During this period he worked in the old Ontario Drain Tunnel from the Judge mine in Park City. On January 20, 1904, he married Lottie Malinda Hicken in the Salt Lake Temple. To this union was born seven children: Vestus Addison, Madge Mahoney Brierley, Alta Mahoney Tippetts, Denton Mahoney, Errol Mahoney, LaMar (died an infant) and Cleofa M. Denbow.

From 1910-1912 he filled a mission for the LDS Church to the Northwestern States. After returning home he became interested in the sheep and cattle business and continued in this line until he retired.

He served a term as city councilman and was always very interested in the welfare of the community.

At the age of 89 he still ran the bull rake at haying time. He was very active and alert till the day of his death on February 14, 1958, at the age of 93. He was a High Priest in the Church.

Lottie Malinda Hicken Mahoney (second wife) was born at Heber, Utah, on September 20, 1879, daughter of Addison and Elizabeth Moulton Hicken. As a young girl she learned dressmaking and practiced it for some time. She is most active in the Church. She served as secretary-treasurer of Heber Third Ward Relief Society and is still very active at 79, never missing a meeting, Sacrament, Sunday School, Mutual or Relief Society. An active Relief Society teacher over 40 years, she lives alone and does all her own work and entertains her family on occasion.

First wife:

Sarah Elizabeth Giles Mahoney, daughter of Mary Ann Moulton and Frederick Giles, was born December 21, 1864, and died at 37 on December 21, 1901. Wasatch County was her home all her life. As a young woman she taught school at Heber City. She later lived at the Moulton Ranch, owned by her uncle, William Moulton. It was here she met J. W. Mahoney and they were later married.

After her marriage she lived at the Walker Ranch on Provo River about four years, then moved to Elkhorn, now known as Keetley, where she lived the next 10 years. She then returned to Heber City, where she lived until her death.

She was a true Latter-day Saint, working when her health would permit in all the organizations of the Church. For some time, when she lived at Keetley, she was at the head of the Sunday School, which was held in the schoolhouse, a short distance from our home.

She was also an accomplished seamstress, and did beautiful work in crocheting, knitting and painting.

sor, and spokesman and tactician for most of the major Federal water resource developments in the State that have been made and will be undertaken during this century. One of the largest water projects he helped fight through to Congressional authorization was the Colorado River Storage Project. This project was adopted in 1956 after five years of strenuous effort, as the largest single-package reclamation appropriation ever approved, a billion-dollar first phase of a four-state water development that will be constructed during the next two decades.

Senator Watkins was born in humble circumstances in Midway, Wasatch County, Utah, on December 18, 1886, a son of Arthur and Adelia Gerber Watkins.

His paternal grandfather was John Watkins, an English-born Mormon handcart pioneer who survived the rigorous ordeal of a walk from Iowa City during the fall and winter of 1856, and then helped colonize Wasatch County, working as a builder, bricklayer, carpenter, sawmill operator, irrigation and municipality works engineer, town board president, and ward bishop in the community of Midway.

His maternal grandfather was Dr. John Gerber, a converted Lutheran Minister and medical doctor from Switzerland who was a pioneer doctor in several Utah communities until his death in Midway in 1870, whereupon his widow, Marie Ackert Gerber carried on as a midwife and nurse for Wasatch County.

Young Arthur Watkins moved with his family to Vernal, Utah, at the age of ten. He attended Uintah County schools, including Uintah Stake Academy, and spent his summers learning irrigation agriculture firsthand on his father's farm.

At the age of sixteen he went to Provo to attend Brigham Young University, where he not only was a serious student but also won athletic honors as a forward on BYU's first championship basketball team.

At the end of his Junior year he was called as a missionary for the LDS Church in the Eastern States Mission, serving principally in Newark, N.J., and New York City. Following his mission he completed some of his undergraduate requirements at New York University and began the study of law. He then transferred to Columbia University Law School, from which he was graduated with an LL.B. degree in 1912.

While in New York he met Andrea Rich, daughter of Mission President B. and granddaughter of Apostle Rich and Lorin Farr, pioneer mormons. They were married in 1913.

Returning to Utah to practice law, Arthur Watkins first hung out in Vernal, Utah. There, in addition to legal work, he served for a time as editor of the Vernal Express.

An appointment as Assistant Attorney for Salt Lake County took him to Salt Lake City in 1914. He handled his county legal job and his private law practice on three years, until his plans were changed by an illness, followed by an abdominal operation.

He turned to farming in Utah as a vocational change of pace and recuperation. Both objections satisfied, Senator Watkins still retains the farm he developed in Orem.

Greatly improved health meant a return to legal activities, and in 1928 Senator Watkins opened an office in Provo. Thereafter he was elected judge of the District Court.

The following year, 1929, he was elected as President of the Sharon Stake. He was to hold for over sixteen years, shortly before he went to the State Capitol in 1946. One of his most widely known efforts as a church and community leader was his role as one of the organizers of the first community recreation project in the depression years, known as the Sharon Community Educational and Recreation Association. This group built the Sharon Theater as both a make-believe and community center, and provided a program of wholesome indoor and outdoor recreational activities which have since become nationally famous.

During these years he also edited a weekly newspaper, originally the Voice of Sharon and later known as the Orem-Geneva Times. The paper is still published, but Senator Watkins stepped out of his interests as publisher when he was elected to Congress.

As a farmer and attorney, he has an active interest in irrigation and water conservation. This interest crystallized in his active role in a major Federal reclamation project in the early 1930's, when he served as chairman of a committee to coordinate Utah water users interested
